History and Description:

A metal windmill tower and fan (Feature B on site map, see Photo WY-112-B-1) is located twenty-two feet south of the modern ranch house. A metal hand pump is centered under the four-foot square base and was probably used as a primary or auxiliary water source before an electric pump was added to a second well in the pumphouse. The pump handle is broken, and it appears that this apparatus has not been functional for many years.
